

FOUNDING PARTNERS · 2026

PARTNER PACK.

Cycletowns is the discovery hub for cycle tourism — every town ranked by the riders who actually rode it. This pack explains what a partnership gets you, what it costs, and exactly where we are today.

THE MARKET

CYCLE TOURISM IS BIG, AND GROWING FAST.

Cycling holidays stopped being a niche a decade ago. Riders travel further, stay longer and spend more than the average visitor — and they choose where to go based on the riding, not the marketing.

High-yield visitors

International cycling trips average around A$9,000. For a Member partner, one extra booking a month typically covers the tier several times over. Cyclists also travel mid-week and in the shoulder season — exactly when a regional business needs the trade.

They plan, and they plan early

A cycling trip is researched over weeks: which region, which roads, which stays, which café at the 60km mark. That long planning window is a long window to be found in — if there's somewhere to be found.

THE GAP WE'RE FILLING

Strava, Komoot and AllTrails map rides. TripAdvisor reviews everything, for everyone. None of them is built for the businesses that want cyclists — there is no dedicated place for a bike-friendly town, stay, shop or operator to be discovered by the riders planning to travel. Cyclists currently plan across a dozen fragmented sources: forums, heatmaps, blogs, word of mouth.

Cycletowns is the supply-side platform for cycle tourism. We exist to make the places and operators findable — and we monetise that side, not the rider's attention.

WHY US

NOBODY ELSE IS BUILDING THIS SIDE.

The ride-mapping apps are consumer products built for athletes tracking their own rides. Supplier onboarding, destination content and cyclist-scored rankings are a different business — and that's the one we're in.

WHERE WE'RE STARTING

We're building region by region rather than thinly everywhere. The beachhead is Bright and Victoria's High Country — owned properly, with real depth, then replicated. Founding partners in a beachhead region get built into the guide first and shape how their region is presented.

Cycletowns is a Sport2040 project, drawing on 30+ years of relationships across events, content and audience in Australian sport.

STRAIGHT TALK ON THE FLYWHEEL

This is a two-sided market, and we're honest about which side comes first. Partners come before the audience. Your listings, routes and local knowledge are what makes a town guide worth reading — and a guide worth reading is what brings the riders.

That's why founding pricing exists. You're taking on some of the early risk with us, and the rate you join at reflects that, permanently.

"WHY NOT WAIT UNTIL YOU'RE BIGGER?"

Fair question, and one we get asked. Three answers: founding partners get the lowest rate, held for as long as they stay; they get top placement in a region while there's room at the top; and the guide for their town gets built with them rather than around them. First movers own the region.

WHAT WE ARE

A GUIDE RIDERS TRUST, BECAUSE RIDERS WROTE IT.

Most cycling travel content is written by people who haven't ridden the roads. Cycletowns is built the other way round: real routes, real cafés, real bike shops, ranked by riders who have been there. We publish nothing we can't stand behind — no invented reviews, no paid rankings, no filler.

Planning tools: multi-day itineraries and a real route builder

Riders arrive with intent

People don't browse Cycletowns idly. They come to choose where to ride next, then plan the trip — which town, which routes, which days. Your business appears at the moment that decision is being made.

Planning happens on-site

The trip planner builds a day-by-day itinerary from a town's real routes and rest days. The loop builder generates rideable loops on real roads and hands over a GPX file. Both put local businesses in the plan.

Verification means something

Every claimed listing is checked by hand before the verified bike-friendly badge goes live. That badge is worth something precisely because we don't hand it out automatically.

Rankings can't be bought

Paid placement is always labelled as paid. Paying us does not move you up a ranking or change your rider rating — and we tell riders that on the site.

WHERE WE ARE, HONESTLY

Cycletowns launched in 2026 and is early. We are not going to quote you an audience figure we can't back up — when we have traffic worth reporting, we will report it, and you'll see your own numbers in your dashboard either way. What we're offering founding partners is a place in the guide before the audience arrives, at pricing that won't be available later.

WHAT YOU GET

FOUR WAYS TO WORK WITH US.

TIER	PRICE	WHAT IT INCLUDES
Claim Every business	Free	Claim your business on its town guide, get the verified bike-friendly badge after we check it, keep your details correct, and collect honest rider reviews.
Member Cafés, bike shops, stays, guides	A$49/mo	Everything in Claim, plus your live dashboard, town demand signals, and the ability to publish a members-only offer to riders who've paid to be here.
Featured Businesses wanting reach	A$290/mo	Everything in Member, plus priority placement on your town and category pages, and a richer, photo-led profile. Always labelled as paid placement.
Brand & Tourism Brands, boards, travel partners	Custom	Multi-town and regional campaigns, promo codes, co-op work with local operators, and reporting built around what you need to prove to your funders.

FOUNDING-PARTNER PRICING

These rates are locked in for partners who join before public launch, for as long as you stay a partner. When we raise prices — and we will, once the audience justifies it — you keep the rate you joined at. No lock-in contract: monthly billing, cancel from your dashboard whenever you like.

PICK YOUR LANE

BUILT FOR EVERY KIND OF PARTNER.

The tiers are the same for everyone. What changes is what you get out of them.

Cafés, bike shops & local services

Get in front of riders rolling through your town and turn them into regulars. The verified badge on a town guide is the single strongest signal to a rider deciding where to stop.

Stays & accommodation

Cyclists stay longer and spend more than the average visitor, and they book around the riding. Appear where the itinerary is being built, with a member rate riders can see.

Tourism boards & destinations

Put your region in riders' plans, and spread them across the whole region rather than the one road everyone already knows. Reporting shaped for the case you have to make to funders.

Brands

Bikes, gear and apparel, placed beside real rider reviews rather than pasted over them. Promo codes and campaign reporting for brands who want the funnel, not just the impression.

Guides, tours & experiences

Be visible on every town page you operate in, keep your own pricing, and pick up riders who are already planning days in your patch.

Events & training camps

Fill your start list. Promote by discipline and region, and drive demand into the shoulder season when your town needs it most.

GETTING STARTED

FOUR STEPS, ABOUT TEN MINUTES.

01

Claim your listing

Go to cycletowns.com/partners/claim and tell us which business is yours. Free, no card.

02

We verify by hand

A real person checks it, usually within one business day. Then your verified badge goes live.

03

Choose a tier

Upgrade from your dashboard when you want the growth tools. Monthly, cancel any time.

04

Put it to work

Publish an offer, keep your details current, and reply to the riders who review you.

Before you send this pack: replace this box with anything specific to the partner — the town they're in, the routes that pass their door, what you've agreed. A pack that names their town reads very differently to a generic one. Delete this box if there's nothing to add.

STRAIGHT ANSWERS

Does paying improve my ranking?

No. Paid placement is labelled as paid. Rankings come from rider ratings and our editorial scoring, and money doesn't touch either.

Can I remove a bad review?

No. We remove reviews that break the rules — fake, abusive, or written by a competitor — but not ones that are simply unflattering. You can reply to any of them.

What if it doesn't work?

Cancel from your dashboard. You keep the rest of the month you've paid for, and your free listing stays.

TALK TO A PERSON

Questions, a town we should cover, or a campaign that doesn't fit the tiers — email us and a human replies within one business day.
